MAVERICK
COSTA RICA • USA EDITION

Maverick Yachts and Saunders Yachtworks have combined their expertise in boat building and mechanical outfitting to produce a sportfishing yacht tailored to the U.S. market – the Maverick USA Edition.

Maverick's reputation for craftsmanship, vessel durability and attention to detail and Saunders' expertise in equipment installation, outfitting, and after-sales support make these two icons in the sportfishing industry a natural fit for partnership.

"Everyone who visits Costa Rica to sportfish knows the reputation of Maverick Yachts. Their track record for raising fish speaks for itself. We are excited to make these yachts more accessible to customers in the United States," Saunders CEO John Fitzgerald said.

"We are thrilled to find a partner in the United States like Saunders who has an excellent reputation in the yacht service industry and whose insight can be adapted into our production process," Maverick CEO Larry Drivon said.

The cold-molded hulls and vessel superstructure for the Maverick USA Edition are constructed at the Maverick Yachts facility in Herradura, Costa Rica. Saunders Yachtworks finishes and outfits the yachts at its boatyard in Gulf Shores, Alabama.

Meet the partners...

In the 1990's, Richard (Bim) Lebo, a lifetime fisherman with many years of successful billfishing experience, started fishing the waters in Costa Rica with his captain Daniel Espinosa. Unsatisfied with the available boats, Bim and Danny designed and built the first Maverick – the Spanish Fly.

Almost 20 years later, what began as a charter business out of Los Suenos Resort and Marina now includes custom yacht sales not only for use in Los Suenos, but also in Panama and the United States. The company employs more than 60 people in its boat building division, occupying almost 20,000 square feet of factory space.

Each Maverick hull is cold-molded and built using three layers of laurel blanco, a strong, lightweight tropical hardwood with a long history of use in boat construction. Quality is never compromised. We deliver each Maverick on time and on budget.
